enlarging the strategic petroleum reserve

as i see it, this petroleum reserve was supposed to be enlarged several years ago.

why was it not and why are we doing it now after the horrendous disaster in new orleans?

why would we put more reserves in the same location which is subject to #5 level strength hurricanes? i dont think that makes any sense at all.

i think we need to disburse this kind of reserve in different areas of our country and puutting it all in the gulf coast area makes no sense at all.

i also think that this need for so much oil is a result of a government which fails to make the auto and truck manufacturers power the vehicles with other power sources than oil or gas - that is a government failure. this move just enlarges that kind of failure by the u.s. govt.

the energy bill just passed by bush and congress shows how the oil cartel wants to keep the u.s. completely dependent on oil forever. it is a very poor government action.
